INTRODUCTION

The book described I received from the practice of restoring the health system at concentrations of seven-, eight-and nine-digit number. Most are seven-digit number, as they allow a generalization with the highest numbers to realize the value in restoring the body. For analytical practice eight-and nine-digit number given in the text book and in the appendix. Extending this principle of restoring health, you can get one concentration of the other, and therefore we can conclude that connect one diagnosis to another. Such a system allows concentration by focusing on numbers, in accordance with a specific diagnosis to cure or restore human health preventive measure, as well as can be obtained reducing the dependence between different diagnoses. Practically, if we take the numerical series of seven digits for one disease, as well as a number series to another disease, then the values of the numbers can get information about what is common between diseases and common treatments for disease. Thus, we can reduce the treatment to single-pulse level simply understanding the situation and adequate mental state.

In this case, the concentration refers to the restoration of species-specific disease, but it can also be transferred to any other situation in event management, as well as the restoration of rights after biological death. Concentration may be performed by the individual for self-healing and can be concentrated by investing in the concentration of the idea of restoring the other person through given by the concentration.

You can concentrate on the real number corresponding to the head, immediately, to include all diseases that are included in a specific chapter, if the disease relates to the title of the chapter, but no definite diagnosis. If you know the diagnosis, the focus should be the number corresponding to a specific diagnosis. At concentrations can go from one concentration to another, and thus to understand how to arrange the sequence of numbers to create a management toward the full restoration of health. Try to find their own concentration.

This approach applies to the overall management through concentration on the numbers. The concentration can be done as consistently, that is, for example, from first to seventh or selecting a number.

Thus, the concentration of different methods of concentration and can be individual, depending on how you apply them. Concentration can be applied at any time, or remembering, or their writing. At the time of concentration should be understood that a spiritual significance you attach to the restoration of the disease and how to extend this knowledge to all the system recovery from a possible global catastrophe on so much you can accelerate the receipt of the result.
